

Why You're Stuck With Inventory You Cannot Sell & What To Do About It.

Sailing The Dangerous Waters of SMCG Retail

WYMBEE MEANS... THE TIDE C

Like you, we know first-hand the frustration of dealing with unsold inventory and the struggle when it starts eating into profits. Discounts, selling at cost, keeping small amounts of inventory...We tried many solutions but they all left us feeling frustrated and disappointed — Well, almost all...

We solved our problem by simply reaching out to SMEs similar to ours in our area & asking if they have higher sell-through-rates for our products, then asking if they would sell our unsold stock, on our behalf for a cut of the profits.

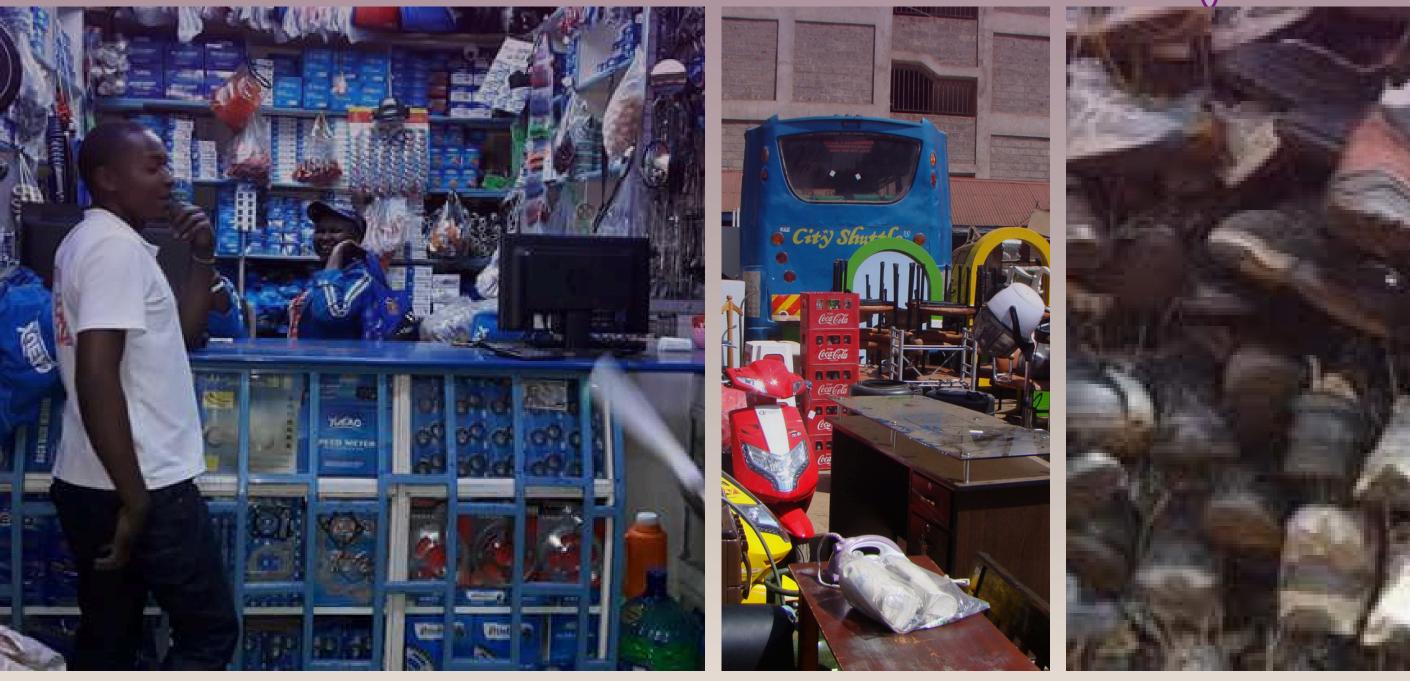

Simple, Right?

Not really. It takes a lot of work & gets harder the more businesses you have to speak to, to find someone to help.

That's what we're doing for you... That & more...So Much More !

PROBLEM

HUNDREDS OF BILLIONS OF SME CASH IS TRAPPED IN UNSOLD INVENTORY ACROSS THE REGION.

Few things are more damaging to a small-business than unsalable stock. From eletronic retailers, fashion retailers, and spare-part sellers to furniture retailers and metal workers, we have plenty of clients who've been stuck with high-quality products that are NOT obsolete.

The stakes are waaaaay higher if you've purchased these products on credit or taken out a loan using them as collateral. I've personally seen businesses trapped with millions of shillings worth of inventory for up to 6 years.

CURRENT OPTIONS

DISCOUNTS, PHILANTHROPY, AND GOD FORBID, AUCTIONEERS ! 😯

DISCOUNTS

Discounts may seem like a quick fix, but they eat into profits and diminish the perceived value of the products. Did you know that offering a 20% discount on your products can result in needing to sell 25% more just to break even?

Slashing prices might attract a few bargain hunters, but it also sends a message that your products aren't worth their original price.

By joining our community and embracing our redistribution strategy, your business can maintain its diverse inventory while sidestepping substantial losses from stocking misjudgments.

This is more common in instances where you've completely given up on selling your stock. Donating unsold inventory yields no financial return and can worsen losses. It's literally worse than a firesale & NOT that great for philanthropy because it will kill your business making you less able to help those that need you.

By reallocating unsold inventory, businesses can make money to support charities. It's a win-win situation.

AUCTIONEERS

Auctions often result in lower-than-expected prices, further eroding potential profits. Additionally, the process can be time-consuming and costly, with fees eating into any potential returns. Plus, there's no guarantee that all inventory will sell, leaving businesses with unsold items and wasted resources.

Our redistribution strategy allows businesses to recoup investments and minimize losses without the uncertainties of auctions.

NOT ALL ENTREPRENEURS HAVE A COLLABORATIVE MINDSET...

Time isn't on businesses' side. There's a principle called the time value of money to prove it.

Less than 10% of small businesses successfully expand to become middle-sized companies after 5 years, which means your best chance at real success is collaboration.

Unfortunately, many entrepreneurs see collaboration as supporting 'the enemy' but this is a poor mindset. Your best option is to pool resources, share knowledge, and access new markets more effectively.

The only resource all businesses will never have enough of is TIME !

The fear that collaborating with another business makes you vulnerable does your business more harm than good..

CONCLUSION

WE HAVE SO MUCH MORE GOODIES PLANNED ... 🕫

The future shines bright for businesses seeking sustainable solutions. Collaborating businesses, especially small ones, form a superhero team that rivals even the Avengers or the Justice League. Even big businesses, and entire countries are diving headfirst into collaboration.

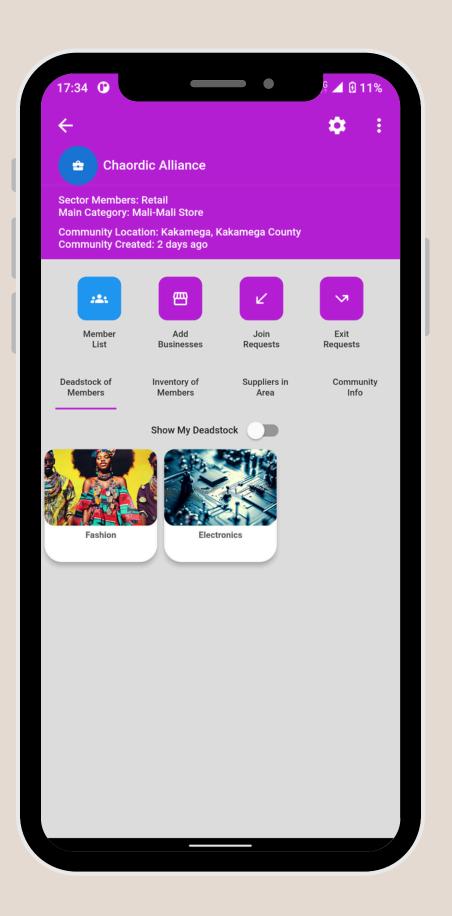

Shake off the fear, and look forward to a future where deadstock becomes opportunity and success is shared by all. We're creating a world where every business thrives and no stock goes to waste.
